I Remember the Difficult Times... World War II Recollections From Shreveport, Louisiana Gary D. Ford

In their own words, 15 men and women from the Shreveport-Bossier City, Louisiana area relate their experiences of World War II in I Remember the Difficult Times... Their stories take the reader from America's entry into the war at Pearl Harbor through the surrender of Germany and the Occupation of Japan. They include men who saw the war from an infantryman's eye view, a nurse who operated on her own husband in the Battle of the Bulge, an airman captured at Corregidor who survived four years of Japanese captivity. A woman who was a teenager in Tokyo tells of life in war-time Japan. A Jewish couple from Holland describes the inhumanities of Nazi concentration camps. A Greek-American relates his exploits as a teenage partisan fighting the Germans in Greece. Illustrated with never-before-seen images of these men and women, the stories in I Remember the Difficult Times... are taken from their interviews in the Oral History Project of Shreveport's R.W. Norton Art Gallery. It's a riveting read of the common man and woman showing uncommon bravery in restoring freedom to the world.
