The Plan David Steenhoek

Life turns out differently than the way you planned it. John Edwards thought he had it all figured out. He had a simple plan when he returned from his mission. He wanted to go to BYU, major in Business, return to Southern California, join a Fortune 500 Company, and work his way up the executive ladder. At that time he'd find a beautiful woman to marry, or maybe she'd just fall into his lap. Then after a couple of years in the crazy business world, he'd start his own business venture, be successful, have the greatest family, a wonderful wife, and the best life ever. That was "The Plan."

There was one problem with "The Plan." It didn't work. The reality hurt. John was stuck in a pointless, dead-end job, where he punched numbers for a living.

Then one day he finds out that Charlotte, a girl he still has feelings for, is engaged. John throws away his life in Southern California, packs his car, and chases after her.
