Too Close to See, Book 3: A Southern Series Virginia Costello thought she had everything worked out in her life, until Trumann Devereux crossed her path. Tru's take no for an answer personality, along with his carefree, non-beige lifestyle throws Virginia into a self-assessment of her life, questioning herself yet again. Virginia is trying to rehash her relationship with her ex, Eli Heley. Once the trust is gone, can you ever really trust someone again? Virginia finds herself in a whirlwind of turbulence when South magazine, her only form of a stable foundation as an adult suddenly receives an offer she and her partner can't refuse, and they decide to sell. Jeremiah James Boonesfield aka, Boone, has also made a surprise reappearance. When Virginia's best friend Jasper, thinks his partner Ian is having an affair, when actually he and Boone have become close friends, keeping Boone's presence in Atlanta a secret. Selling the magazine and the realization that Boone has never left Atlanta, this sends Virginia running into the arms of Trumann Devereux. Will Virginia stop running and finally see the things that are too close to see? On the other hand, will she crash and burn with her choices? Virginia Costello is about to hit an emotional wall. This time she has to rely on herself to make the right decision, or face a life of being alone with her life choices.
