The Fingerprint of God: A Year's Daily Devotion Christopher C. Smith

This daily devotional was inspired by God. He once asked me, “Where can I find your fingerprints in the earth realm?” Immediately, I knew exactly what God was asking of me. He was asking who are the people I am influencing on a daily basis for Him. First, I started sending what I thought would be an encouraging scripture to my children, but that was just the beginning. Soon, the recipients turned into a large percentage of my family, church leaders, and eventually, the congregation. From there, I can't tell you who received the devotions. Now, it has reached your fingertips to influence your life for the better.

This is a word for influencers in the world who will influence others with the message of faith and hope. I would like to ask you the same question that God asked me, “Where can God look in the earth realm and find your fingerprints?” Using the Word of God to influence, in whose lives did God call you to make a difference? Maybe, just maybe, you know within your heart that God has called you to influence the lives of others for the better, but you don't have the right tools to do so. Whether you know whom you are to influence in this earth realm and/or are seeking encouragement for yourself, may this daily devotional equip you with the tools you need to influence and be encouraged at the start of every day.
